ANN ARBOR -- Michigan coach Brady Hoke was asked Tuesday if returning quarterback Shane Morris is a good fit for Michigan's spread offense. "Shane is a good fit for our system," Hoke said. Morris began the 2013 season as Michigan's starting quarterback, but suffered a season-ending concussion in the fourth game and didn't play again that season. Hoke said Tuesday that Morris has had a spring in which he has been "an excellent leader" and said he believes "he has progressed as

Christmas Sing Along was designed to be used during the holidays, providing users with songs and lyrics they can sing at Christmas time. It is an entertaining application, meant to lift up your spirits by delivering explicit on-screen lyrics for the most popular Christmas songs of all time. It also contains a few YouTube links to videos of celebrities interpreting classic holiday music. Following a short installation process, you will be acquainted with the application, which displays a Santa figure holding a present and showing a countdown (in days) until Christmas. There is no interface to the program; instead, its feature set becomes available when you perform a quick right-click on Santa. The menu that pops up encases a list of traditional Christmas songs (fifteen of them), amongst which you will see famous titles such as Jingle Bells, Jingle Bell Rock, Frosty the Snowman, We Wish You a Merry Christmas and so on. As mentioned before, in the list you will find links to YouTube videos of music stars such as Luciano Pavarotti, Andrea Bocelli and Nat King Cole interpreting songs like Ave Maria or the Lord's Prayer. Courtesy of the developer, you will also be able to access links to a set of special songs (non-Christmas related) that include the Hungarian Rhapsody, Moonlight Sonata or Nussun Dorma. On an ending note, Christmas Sing Along is an entertaining application and despite lacking an interface, it is easy-to-use and intuitive. It displays the lyrics along with the music, which allows users to practice and sing Christmas carols seamlessly. Standardized questionnaire for monitoring exposure to asbestos and radon in the construction sector in Belgium. The aim of the present work was to assess the reliability and validity of an exposure questionnaire designed for the monitoring of exposure to asbestos and radon in the construction sector in Belgium. Sixty-four questionnaires were distributed to 450 construction workers by means of a personal interview conducted by one of two trained interviewers. Thirty-seven workers refused to participate or were unable to participate for more than one of the investigated jobs. Overall, 31 usable questionnaires were collected. The three dimensions of the questionnaire corresponded to the exposure situation of the worker at three different occasions: before starting the job, at the end of the first working week, and at the end of the job. The dimension of the questionnaire measuring the current exposure was subdivided into three aspects (static, dynamic, and source-dependent). The first two aspects correspond to the static and dynamic situations of the
