1-hour reminders to drink water. No settings to fiddle with. App is not distracting in any way. Just a glass-shaped progress bar.

The app is not a million miles away from the first one we reviewed — Stay-HD — but there are plenty of important differences that make this app worth your time. First, it uses the Electron framework, so it should be compatible with all major desktop operating systems. It's easy to use, but not in a way that's going to make you wish you never downloaded it. In fact, the app is as unassuming as it is useful. If you're looking for a solution to track your water intake without the need to be obsessively checking your smartphone, this is one of the apps you should consider. Do note that it's a Windows-only app, but hey, you're reading this on a Mac, so if it's a deal-breaker, you're probably fine. Staying hydrated is a simple yet effective desktop app. The app's main feature — water reminders — might not sound all that useful, but the app is smart enough to identify how long it's been since you've had some water. If you need a reminder to drink more water, this app is for you. There are no bells or whistles, but the app does have some advantages. It's easy to use and, importantly, it's non-distracting. On the app's home screen, you're greeted with a full-screen glass with a visual progress bar and a reminder to "Drink More Water." Clicking the glass will dismiss the reminder and bring up the timeline for the reminder, and if you want to reset the timeline, you can just click the glass again. When it comes to water, some people are very good at getting water, and some are not so good. With this app, you can remind yourself to drink some water by checking the timeline every hour. Clicking the timeline gives you the option to "drink more water" or "I'm out." Once you click the "drink more water" option, you'll receive a one-hour reminder to drink some water. The app lets you choose between reminders for one hour, two hours, three hours or four hours. I've never had a

Stay-Hydrated is a simple, informative, one-minute-reminder-about-drinking-water. You can choose which interval of minutes you want to have a reminder (so you can decide to "strive" for 30 minutes or just get a reminder for 10 minutes) and you can even make your water glass shape. SourceKENNESAW, Ga. -- Five-star running back D'Andre Swift committed to Georgia on Wednesday, a day before the Bulldogs' season opener against South Carolina. Swift became the third five-star prospect to commit to Georgia this week. He chose the Bulldogs over Auburn, Florida, Missouri and Texas A&M. He joins Chauncey Gardner-Johnson and D'Andre Clements as the best running backs in Georgia's 2015 recruiting class. "I just felt like it was the best fit for me and the best situation I was going to be in," Swift said. "I know the coaches are looking out for me and I know I'm going to be getting the best situation for me as far as playing time and whatnot." The offensive line coach at Oak Ridge (Tenn.) High School, Shannon Carl, said Swift is so committed that he made sure to tell his coaching staff that was where he was going before he made the decision public. Swift is an offensive lineman by trade, but he has said that it didn't matter where he played when deciding where to attend college. "He's just a football player first and foremost," Carl said. "He's a quick-twitch player. He's just very explosive. He's a big back, he's a downhill runner and he's an excellent receiver out of the backfield. "In the passing game he's got speed to get away from defenders. He's got the ability to make the offense go. He's very flexible and he's got great vision." Carl said the Bulldogs' staff got an opportunity to watch Swift at the Army All-American game last month. "When I watch him at Army games or I watch him at the Peach Bowl, he's very fast and he's explosive," Carl said. "He's running around the field, the field is short and he just has that kind of ability to make it go. "I think the biggest thing for him is just being around his teammates. I think Georgia will be a great fit for him because they're a great program 81e310abbf

Hours pass by, tasks are dealt with, but our bodies take the ultimate toll, especially without proper care. One of the simplest things to do for your health is to stay hydrated. It may seem funny or overly simplistic, but drinking enough water has a ton of benefits. Scientists often point out that staying well-hydrated can improve mood and cognition, but it also helps regulate the body's temperature, keep joints lubricated, and deliver all the required nutrients to all our cells and organs. Use a hydration reminder or try stay-hydrated (the app) Thankfully, nowadays, it's quite easy to get notified about staying hydrated. We have smartwatches, smartphones, tons of mobile apps, and even browser extensions that get this job done easily. However, if you want something more "local," you could try a desktop app appropriately named stay-hydrated. It's a basic Electron-based app that offers you hourly reminders to drink water. In terms of features. well, there aren't any. You just get a glass-shaped progress bar, and when the water disappears, you can replenish it (meaning you reset the 1-hour timer) by clicking the "Drink" button. To pause the timer, you can click
